The Present Situation of Imperialism in France. Cable dispatch to the New York Herald: The Figure of Saturday contains a leading article, signed by Francis Maynard, reviewing the present situation of imperialism in

We persist in believing that the rote o onapartism in its active manifestation has been interrupted, and that one section of the party is at loggerheads. Our opinion is well known. We stated it on the very evening of the day on which we learned the news of the death of Prince Louis Napoleon. There are only two possible principles of government; 1. Either the nereditary monarchical right, the product of the soil of the race, of the national temperament, which exists inde pendent of the will of the people and their changing caprices, on the principle from which people no more deviate than upon the principle of the levying of taxes, of the mili-

To this Cassagnac replied in the Pays of the twenty-second of June, in an article headed "Questions of the Day," in which he sliuded personally to Girardin, reminding him that he should not speak thus of the imperial family, which had created him a senator; and reminding him further, that the CABLE NEWS. tor; and reminding him further, that the empress had once risked her life at the bedside of his dying daughter. The article concludes as follows:

"When one is, like yourself, so near to death, Monsieur De Girardin, when one is only separated by some painful ingratitudes, he ought at least to prepare himself for the respect for his own shame."

In La France, of the twenty-third, in an rucle entitled, "Respect the Tomb," M. Giardin replies to the accusation of want of respect for the dead by quoting the atrocious thin s which Cassagnac wrote upon the death of Thiers, of which the following is a specimen:

"Denth strikes you. So much the better. He has spared you too long already. Leave me slone once for all. Let me maintain my right of showing my joy, of testifying my delight."

Cassagnac replies in the following terms, his article being headed, "A. M. De Guardin:" "You argue instead of begging pardon. You give new paragraphs in place of the apologies that every body expects. Very well. You and your puppets are eaten up with egotism. It is nothing but ink. Of New York Plays a Deceptive Little Game on a North Carolina Com-musity, the Denouement of Which Comes Only After His Death.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat special from Hendersonville, N. C., June 30th: "This quiet town has been thrown into a wild state of excitement by a romantic affair, which has just eome to light. On March 5th a man, giving his name as G. H. Carter, of New York, came to Hendersonville to live, and was soon married to Miss Josephine Bond, a beautiful and cultivated young lady, of this place. He had been living in Hendersonville about three mouths when he met her. He was a man of culture and refinement, highly educated, spoke several languages, and had traveled all over the world. He led a rather retired life at first, but his polished manners soon made him very popular. He represented soon made him very popular. He represented himself as a master mechanic of New York, and gave as a reason for his change of abode that his health would not stand the severe northern climate. He died a few days ago. Here comes the strangest part of the man's eventful history. Soon after his death a brilliantly-dressed lady made her appearance n Hendersonville, and claiming that she was his only lawful wife, had the body exhumed and taken to New York. It now turns out that he had a wife in New York, and that the name Carter was fictitious. His name was William H. Whiteley, a former millionaire of Brock-lyn, New York. He was a fagitive from the State of New York, and a policy-holder in State of New York, and a poncy-noticer in the New York life insurance company for fifty thousand dollars, and the builder of St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal church, Brock-lyn. September election will be the first general tol at him, and Blair fired the second shot. Chicago Times: The National party Ohio is large enough to divide, and it is divided. In 1877 it numbered 16,912 voters, or a little more than 3 per cent. of all the voters who cast their ballots at the State lection of that year. In 1878 they cast 38,-332 votes, or 6½ per cent. of the total. Eacouraged by this growth of from 3 per cent. to 6½ per cent, they feel that they are numerous enough to make two parties thin year. The stalwarts have a platform and ticket of their own, and they propose to fight it out on that line, keeping clear of entangling and unboly alliances. The other divis-ion, who may be called the Caryites, have a platform, but no ticket. Ewing is a good enough National for them, and it is for Ewing's sake that they bolt their own party ticket. Whether their friendship for Ewing will do that candidate more good than harm is a question. It is certain that the hard money German Democrats will not vote for Ewing, but they might not, and probably would not, even if he had no National support. His own record is enough to kill him with all honest hard money Democrats.

mand the Eight-Hour System. CHICAGO, July 2.-The Tribune of tomorrow will publish a series of interviews with the most prominent men in the tradesunions, in which the members positively deeight-hour movement or for higher wages. There seems to be no indication of a concentrated action or general understanding between the workingmen regarding a strike. Mr. Goldwater, president of the Chicago trades-council, states that he knows nothing of any strike to take place this summer, and that there is no truth in any statement of the kind that may have been put forth.

DISTRIBUTION OF THE ELECTION COMMIT-TEES. The members of the senate committee on privileges and elections have arranged to distribute themselves as follows: For prosecuting inquiries authorized by the senate in the Spofford Kellogg case and the Ingalls inves-tigation during the congressional recess. The Kansas sub-committee will consist of Senators Saulsbury, Bailey, Vance, Cameron [Wis.] and Logan. They will commence their labors in Kansas during the latter part of September. The Louisiana sub-committee will be composed of Senators Hill [Ga.] and Houston as its Democratic, and either Cameron [Wis.] or Logan as its Republican representative. Senator Hoar's engagement making it impossible for him to serve, the Louisiana investigation will not be resumed until about the twentieth of November, when the subcommittee are to assemble in New Orleans.
